Hello, I am GAO Xiang of Science Buddy. I had lots of fun in the event "Japanese culture experience" hold in January. In this event, many traditional Japanese culture were introduced, such as tea ceremony and calligraphy. I was very glad that I could review calligraphy in this event. I had learnt calligraphy in China for a few years, and in this event I also experienced Japanese calligraphy, which expanded my knowledge about calligraphy. Calligraphy in two countries are very similar but a little different, which corresponds to the culture communication in ancient and separate developments. From my perspective, the differences of tea between two cultures are more evident. Different with leaves, Japanese traditional Matcha looks like powder. Because of this difference, the brewing and instrument are totally different, which feels interesting and novel. In this event, the most fascinating thing for me is to experience the differences from similarity, which corresponds to the cultural communication and influence in ancient history.

BRIJESH (India)

Science Buddy

2020年3月 博士後期課程修了

I am Brijesh from India. I completed my Ph.D. in Physics from Osaka University. My stay at Osaka University was one of the best times of my life. I learned so much here. Osaka University is one of the prestigious universities in the world with world-class research facilities and, because of that, before joining the university, I was assured that I would improve my research skills here. But, what I am glad about the most is that I was able to join student organizations here and was able to improve my communication and networking skills, made many friends, learned new languages, learned and experienced Japan and other countries' culture through the people and by participating in the events organized by the student organizations. Science Buddy is a volunteer student organization active in the Graduate School of Science. My advice to all the students, especially international students, in the Graduate School of Science is to join and to be active in Science Buddy. If you are too busy to be a member of the group, at least join the events and have fun. Joining a student organization is a great way to make friends, learn languages, etc. especially for international students who are new in Japan and who sometimes can feel homesick. In my experience, learning Japanese is very crucial if want to enjoy your stay here, so please do learn the language. I wish good luck and success to all the students. Enjoy while chasing your dreams!!
